

CONSULTATION ON SERVICES FOR ADULTS WITH AUTISM SPECTRUM CONDITIONS: 2009

The government is currently conducting a consultation on how best to support adults with Autism Spectrum Conditions (ASC). To help them understand how services can be delivered in the best possible way, they are also interested in what you can tell them about what has worked or not worked with services that you are involved with.

There is a full consultation document available online at www.dh.gov.uk/en/Consultations/Liveconsultations/DH_098587. It is detailed and comprehensive and we would welcome your responses to this. However, we have compiled this more brief version which you may prefer to complete.

In order to provide accurate feedback to the government, we would like to gain as full a picture as possible, and as such feel that your input is vital. This form is anonymous, but if you wish to discuss your thoughts further, please do add your details.

YOUR VIEWS

The government's research so far suggests that these are the areas where there's the greatest need for improvement for people with ASC (There are definitions at the end of this document):

- Health
- Social Inclusion
- Employment
- Choice and Control
- Training (of staff)

1. Do you agree that these areas should be the government's priority for people with ASC?

Please feel free to add other areas which you feel should be prioritised in the table below.
